NEW WAVES

REDISCOVERING TAIWANESE CINEMA OF THE 1980s

One of the wonders of late-20th-century world cinema was the wave of remarkably talented directors who emerged in Taiwan during the 1980s, an incredible efflorescence that swiftly reinvented a national cinema. Yet, despite the international acclaim given to the leading directors of the so-called New Taiwan Cinema, the larger body of their work has rarely been screened outside their own country.
