BIRDS SING
An animated film in which children from the Ivory Coast give their accounts of war and peace.

To walk the walk. Trust, patience, compassion, and humor are part of the lesson plan. For a refugee child anywhere in the world, Miss Kiet is keenly aware of the problems they've already lived through — she teaches them to speak Dutch, to talk the talk — but more importantly, she compels to leave — fated to reimagine their earliest years through poetry and song.

The international press calls MISS KIET'S CHILDREN: “a jewel,” “subtle but powerful,” and “tender and shrewdly observed.”

MISS KIET'S CHILDREN   DIRECTED BY PETRA LATASTER-CZISCH AND PETER LATASTER

Presented with support from the Richard Brick, Geri Ashur, and Sara Bershtel Fund for Social Justice Documentaries

Combining documentary and fiction filmmaking, SONG OF GRANITE portrays the hardscrabble life of master stonecutter Alfredo Giuffrida as well as the story of his son, grandson, and great-grandson, each a master stonecutter in his own right. In 2015, Alfredo placed his tools down for the last time after working his entire life in the granite quarry and as a stonecutter in Green-Wood Cemetery. Now, his grandson, Alfredo Giuffrida III, continues the family business.
